Lift System

- Please note there is a difference between the lining fabric and Norm is sewn directly to the back of the shade fabric while the lift system is periodically to the lining to lift the shade onto the accompanying roll for cords, shrouds, rings or grommets providing a cleaner appearance.
- The lift system will connect to every other batten.

Railroading & Seaming

Please refer to the fabric list for railroad and seaming availability.

Railroading

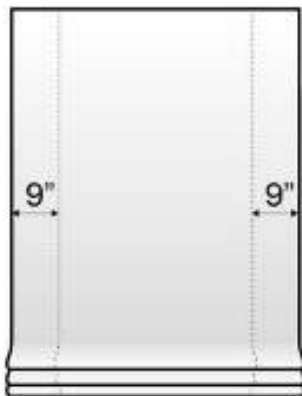

Some fabrics can be turned 90° clockwise (width for height) to accommodate the shade will be horizontally seamed to reach the desired ordered height as they are made at the battens of a Flat Fold with Batten Back shade.

Exceptions:

1. Railroading is limited to Flat Fold with Batten Back and Soft
2. Horizontal seaming is not available for Black Gingham F000; max shade height for this fabric can be found on the Size Chart
3. Orientation Standard for AC0401 (Sheer Elegance collection); orientation will be the Standard. Non-railroaded orientation is also available in Flat Fold with Batten Back and Soft.

Seaming (Vertical)

- When railroading is not available in select fabrics, vertical fabric seaming is used to reach the ordered width.
- The fabric panels on either end will be a minimum of 9" in width based on the ordered width. This includes the valance, if a valance is ordered.

Shade with seams, no valance

Fabric Information & Additional Options

Please note that all fabrics will adjust to the environment, and the environment can cause color fading, fabric stretching, fabric shrinkage, or other damages.

Color Variation

- Natural fabrics especially linen, cotton and silk are made from natural materials and due to varying rates of color absorption during the color application process, all colors are all part of the natural beauty of this product and should be considered as such.
- Colors may appear to vary depending on the time of day and lighting type. The appearance of color variation may also occur if the shade is partially covered or not.
- All fabric colors gradually fade due to UV exposure. If a shade is left hanging regularly, the fabrics will fade unevenly. Fabrics will fade more evenly in parts of the shades that are overlapped by another piece of fabric will result in a rate in which it fades will be slower than those parts that are more exposed.
- For the best color match, order all matching shades for a room at the same time. The color between orders cannot be assured. Any variation in color is in accordance with the natural beauty of the fabric.
- Light will penetrate through the pin holes of seams/stitching.
- Actual fabric colors may vary slightly from the images we provide.

Wrinkles

- Natural fibers, such as linen, cotton and silk, are fairly inelastic, tend to wrinkle. The tendency to wrinkle is often considered as part of the fabric's unique character. Hang the shade in a fully lowered position for a few days. It will help minimize wrinkles and disappear naturally.
- Disclaimer: Ironing fabrics labeled Do Not Iron may damage the fabric.

Surface Imperfections

- Due to the nature of fibers and the weaving process, some "imperfections" are not considered to be defects. Slubs in silk, linen and cotton are expected and are not considered to be defects.
- Imperfections on fabrics in longer lengths may occur. These are caused by the nature of the fabric.
- There is a maximum of 10 yards for fabric by the yard as surface imperfections will be marked with a label.

Asymmetry

- Due to the natural characteristics of fabrics, slight shrinkage and stretching of shade are to be expected and deemed acceptable. These variations may affect the appearance of the finished shade.
- Specifically, you may notice a slight variation in width and/or length on the shade. Even with shrinkage control in the manufacturing process, most linen, cotton and silk production. Thus, the width and length of the shade may have changed over some time. Washing the shade can further intensify this shrinkage.
- Width and length difference between different shades may occur due to the nature of the fabric. Thus the length of the shade and the segment height between two shades may be ordered as the same size.
- After the Roman shade has been installed, the weight of the fabric, the weight of the shade, and all affect the extent to which a shade will settle. Since this process is so variable, the shade may vary by up to +/- 10mm. The shades may take 1 to 2 weeks of hanging to settle.
- Weave skewing of fabrics is common during the weaving process. Patterns may vary slightly from the images we provide.

Roman Shades

Routine cleaning will help maintain the beauty of your shade.

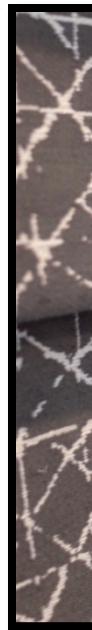

Proper ways to clean Roman Shades:

- Use a hand held vacuum to remove debris
- Use a duster to remove any light dust
- Spot clean by using a soft cloth or sponge moistened with mild detergent, if needed. Blot gently to avoid creasing or damage the fabric.

Proper ironing for Roman Shades:

- Iron low to medium, if necessary
- Do not iron fabrics that are 100% silk, 100% linen/cotton or Translucent Lining
- For specific ironing instructions for each fabric, please refer to the care label.
